

Killing One By One- Bill C-14

Begin forwarded message:

Dear Justin and staff,

Canada is a great Country - with many great benefits, beauty and birthrights.

It is amazing how quickly one can -with the pen - change life forever.

Bill C-14 is filled with clouded ambiguity.

Is there a provision in Bill C -14 for medical personnel, who do not want to kill their fellow Canadians, or participate in this gruesome task?

No one should be allowed to kill another person, especially by a law!!!

This bill allows one to murder another, with little or no reporting or accountability to a third party, that the act was done.

The conscience is very fragile and people who are around those who kill, will also be affected.

One just has to look at Post-Traumatic Syndromes in people returning from wars.

We should not be surprised to see after euthanasia or assisted suicide - that we will have an increase in depressed individuals - which will invariably increase dollars to our health care system!

When one is ill, the mind can play clever tricks with it. People can say one thing when they are not well, and when they get better - the person can not believe what they had said.

Many patients are lonely and want to end their life - the leading cause of suicides...not because they want to die, but because they feel hopeless and /or lonely. They feel no one cares! This increases mental pain.

They are sending a signal for help...to get them better, not kill them!

In schools - a teacher helps children see their gifts to help themselves, others and their country.

In hospitals - medical staff help patients see how they can help themselves, others and their community.

Both send a message of hope!!!

When Canadians embrace a life of darkness, without hope, we endanger our whole Country.

A pall settles on the land that enjoys killing.

We may not be like other parts of the world who kill by war, but C-14 is asking for everyone to participate in a war, by killing Canadians one by one!

Death affects not just the person, but many others. The domino effect is far reaching- to families, communities and countries.

Bill C-14 needs many improvements and clear safeguards.

As a Registered Nurse for 10 years, having end-of-life patients, it was extremely rare to have a person ask to end their life;

but families would ask to end a person's life - and the reason - so the family could get back to work or go on holiday or save money, i.e. not pay for the patient's care, but have extra money for themselves.

Once you open the box for suicides to be accepted by Parliament, it will be a grave teaching.

Listen to the doctors and individuals who want Life to be the focus of their careers and others' lives.

They want to enjoy their life to help others.

As the circle of life is ending, we all need to help each other to maintain the grace and dignity of the dying person.

Mother Teresa's Missionary of Charity Sisters, do just that and for free.

Perhaps the government can give the Sisters of Charity, homes or arrange places they can work in, to help dying individuals who seek care.

We always need to give hope to people, not create a hell of darkness for them.

Do Not Vote In Favor of This Bill as it is Written!!!

Sincerely,

Deanna MacDonald
