

Dear Justice Committee,

Please do what should have already been done years ago, and end the archaic practice of conversion therapy abuse in Canada. It's an embarrassment to our country, our commitment to human rights and the very nature of the human spirit. This cruel, outdated practice has gone on long enough.

As a country with such global influence in the fight for LGBT rights, it is imperative that we lead by example and end conversion therapy now. This isn't a matter of politics, it's a matter of decency.

I look forward to a future where I can rest assured no LGBT person in Canada will be forced into the treacherous humiliation of conversation therapy.

With respect,

Joseph Cicerone
